Using the ArriveCAN application

Before you begin, remember that:

1. Its use is compulsory since November 21, 2020.
2. You must provide the required information BEFORE your arrival in Canada, even before boarding a carrier or your vehicle.
3. You will use either the application for Android or iOS systems or the especially dedicated section on the canada.ca website and you will create an account by providing your full name and an email address.
4. You can provide information in one of the two official languages (French, English).
5. You will provide information about the carrier, your identity, status in Canada (Canadian citizen, permanent resident, temporary foreign worker etc.), purpose of the trip to Canada, quarantine plan - if applicable (address, people who will be staying with you, etc.).
6. You will do a self-assessment of your Covid-19 symptoms.
7. You will send a daily confirmation regarding compliance with your quarantine plan - if applicable.

By answering "yes" to this question, you consider that your trip meets the definition of "essential trip" and you would like to prevail yourself of an exemption from the requirement to submit the quarantine plan. As written, it is the CBSA officer who will decide if your travel is exempt. Have in hand all the useful documents that will allow the agent to recognize you this exemption (see, for information, our kit produced for employees and companies providing essential services).

However, you must always complete the sections concerning your trip, contact information, destination addresses, symptom self-assessment and submit the completed form before arriving in Canada.
